PART 3 PRINCIPLES AND BEST PRACTICES

Division 1 Procurement principles

10 Principles for carrying out procurement activities

- (1) The following principles apply for carrying out procurement activities under the Act and these Regulations:
  - (a) the principle of value for money, which is the principle that, in acquiring good, services or works, a procurement officer should aim to secure good quality at the lowest price;
  - (b) the principle of competitive purchasing, which is the principle that a procurement officer should aim to permit the entire relevant market to compete to supply Government;
  - (c) the principle of efficient, effective and ethical use of resources, which is the principle that procurement should be conducted so as to eliminate waste and make only proper use of Government resources;
  - (d) the principle of accountability and transparency, which is the principle that procurement decisions should be expressed and recorded in writing in such a way to make it clear what has been done and why it has been done;
  - (e) the principle of financial sustainability, which is the principle that procurement should be conducted in parallel with a sustainable fiscal strategy which:
    - (i) can be continued into the foreseeable future without substantial amendment; and

- (ii) is designed to avoid sudden changes in tax rates or spending decisions and so prevent a substantial deterioration in the country's fiscal position;
- (f) the principle of equity, which is the principle that procurement should be conducted in a manner which:
  - (i) supports equality of opportunity in general; and
  - (ii) in particular advances community equality by providing economic opportunities for all Solomon Islanders, including women, youth and people with disabilities.

11 Duty to apply principles etc.

In carrying out procurement activities, procurement officers must act consistently with:

- (a) the principles set out in Part 9 of the Act; and
- (b) the principles specified in regulation 10; and
- (c) the standards specified under Part 6 of these Regulations; and
- (c) internationally accepted best practices in procurement.

12 Manner in which to apply principles

- (1) In applying the principles referred to in regulation 10, a procurement officer must aim to balance them against each other in the manner that seems most appropriate in the circumstances.
- (2) A procurement officer may depart from a principle if the officer is satisfied that doing so:
  - (a) achieves a proper balance of the principles specified in regulation 10; and
  - (b) is in accordance with the principles set out in Part 9 of the Act; and
  - (c) is appropriate in the circumstances.
- (3) In particular:
  - (a) the value for money principle does not prevent a procurement officer from acquiring goods, services or works at a price that is not the lowest attainable price if satisfied that it is the most appropriate course having regard to other factors that directly contribute to using public funds in the most efficient and effective manner; and
  - (b) the accountability and transparency principle does not prevent a procurement officer from agreeing to respect commercial confidentiality in respect of particular matters if satisfied that it is appropriate in the circumstances and that a reasonable degree of accountability and transparency can be achieved.

Division 2 Contracts and tenders

13 Valuation of contracts and tenders

In valuing contracts and tenders, a procurement officer:

- (a) must use cost estimates that are complete, accurate and current; and
- (b) value goods using bulk prices (not retail prices) and include costs of shipping and delivery, installation or commissioning, warranties and other requirements; and
- (c) must base cost estimates of works on engineer's built-up unit rates developed for each work item in the schedule of activities or items of work or bill of quantities; and
- (d) must not base cost estimates on a contractor's bid price; and
- (e) may not include vehicles for use by public officers or other Government employees as a cost item in the bill of quantities; and
- (f) may include contingencies and provisional sums in cost estimates.

14 Packaging of contracts

    - (i) goods;

    - (ii) the need to open a tender to international competition if there is limited or lack of capacity in the domestic market; and
  - (c) within each category, combine similar or related items into a single contract package if it is likely that doing so will enable bulk purchasing for a reduced unit price and if it is reasonably practical to do so; and
  - (d) determine the appropriate procurement method for each contract package as a whole.

15 Commencement of tendering process

- (1) The tendering process begins on the advertisement of the tender.
- (2) The tendering process must not begin unless the TPU has reviewed and approved the tender documents.

To achieve uniformity in use of terminology to refer to the mode of transporting imported goods, the internationally recognised set of trade terms known as the "International Commercial Terms" (or "Incoterms"), as published from time to time by the International Chamber of Commerce, must be used in all tendering and contract documentation.

- (2) In conducting this analysis, a tenderer's unit price on a particular work item that is more than 15% lower than the unit price in the cost estimates must be verified as follows:
  - (a) the tenderer must, on request by the procurement officer, explain the tenderer's unit price on the work item;
  - (b) the procurement officer must carry out an independent review of the cost estimates on that particular work item.
- (3) Procurement officers carrying out the evaluation must satisfy themselves that:

  - (b) any attempt by any means made at contract execution stage by a party to the contract to correct such errors or omissions (for example by way of variation or adjustment of quantities or unit prices) must be treated as an attempt to tamper with the contract.
- (4) The matters specified in subparagraph (3) must be specified in the tender documents.
- (5) The procurement officer must inform the tenderer awarded a lump-sum contract of the matters specified in subparagraph (3).
- (5) Progress payments under lump-sum contracts must be based on well-defined key construction milestones, or on percentage of completion, as specified in the contracts.
